“ Tommy Albaugh,

Angie Zemzicki and Carl Gentry always enjoyed you. Cannot forget your fantastic humor. And your vast knowledge of music (and about anything else). You were always the life of the party and the leader in adventures. Peace and love brother. RIP.

Mary,

Be at peace friend. We think about you often. People leave and move on, but memories always stay. STAY tough as I know you are. Love, Angie and Carl

“ I only met Tommy twice and each time was memorable. He was funny, generous, kind and so much fun to hang out with.

The first time I met him was at church for a wedding of his brother to my mother. He cracked me up during the church services, before the wedding, by interrupting the preacher (after one or two treacherous songs we all tried to sing) to ensure we all sang a song we knew and enjoyed (Silent Night) rather than the lesser known songs we were struggling to get through. I was amused, stunned, and impressed when I heard an interruption of the preacher. I turned around saw this man (I had yet to meet) with his leg up in the air and his hymn song book in one hand and the other hand lifted to the crowd encouraging everyone to join him in a song we could all sing. This seemed unheard of to me, it might well be, unless you are Tommy Albaugh. What a character, but he was right we did need an easier song. I suppose when your grandfather builds the church, and your brother is getting married that day, you have influence or maybe simply because you're Tommy Albaugh you have influence....after all we all joined him in song.

The other time I met him, he was once again, funny, generous, kind and so much fun. I was lucky to spend the day with him, Mary and Erin in D.C. the day before Tommy's father's funeral at Arlington National Cemetery.

Tommy and Mary took us (Erin and me) around D.C. for the day. This is absolutely one of my fondest memories. We all had so much fun. Tommy gave us a great tour, knowing where to go, the history behind every monument, or museum we saw. He shared history with a different "angle" than I am use to hearing. He had what seemed to be a lot of "trivial" knowledge about people and places along with historical knowledge. The one I recall most quickly was him explaining to us (while we were visiting the Jefferson Memorial) that Thomas Jefferson enjoyed Gothic art. He told us he even had a Gothic ink well he used when signing important documents etc. (if I recall correctly). Who knows these things, Tommy Albaugh, that's who, or he was pulling my leg, I don't know, I loved it either way.

I am glad I got to spend some time with him, even if only a few times. I will miss him, so I can't imagine how much those who were closer to him will miss him.

I am sending heartfelt condolences to everyone who lost Tommy, especially his family, he was a great man, and this is a tremendous loss.

Love, Carol Lynn

“ Mary
Sorry to hear of this sad news. I had many good times with Tommy and had many good battles on the basketball court at the old Jr high, playing ball and enjoying summer and winter league games. Those are some of my fondest memories, when life was simple and carefree. Tom always had some words of wisdom to reflect, a great spirit, and always embraced having fun. Thinking of you during this difficult time and keeping you in my thoughts and prayers
