“ I was an early teenager with my grandmother goldie and grandfather charles his brother. we were at their house in webster when i seen this gentleman pull in. it was a hot summer day, pap had no shirt on and this gentleman had his shirt unbuttoned and undone. Granny asked me if i knew who this man was and obviously i said no he didnt look familiar. he was introduced to me as paps younger brother my uncle gene. from that day on a bond formed between him and I that i cannot explain. I would call him on the phone to check in on them from time to time. Always go hunt them down when we'd get to the family reunion and when i sent christmas cards they were always on my list to send too. He had a heart of gold and anyone who knew this man loved him. He was such a gentle soul and would give you his last nickel in his pocket if he knew you didn't have anything. I will forever miss our talks uncle gene but I know you have several years of catching up to do with pap and uncle bobby. I love you dear sweet man and this isn't good bye this is simply see you later.
