“ I have really been missing you alot lately brother. So much has happened and changed since you left. I think about you everyday and your memory always makes me smile. You were so strong even in your weakest moments. I will never forgot the last moments we spent together, we held each other and cried for a good 10 minutes straight. We both knew that would be the last time we saw each other in this life, but we will meet again someday. I love you Joey, keep my brother Christopher safe until we can all meet up and hang out again like the old days. I miss and love you Joey

“ Love? That word fails to explain it.. you're my best friend.. from playing mash all night in between PS4 battles to our random kitchen food raids.. you've been by me for many days and I do know you'll continue to stand there forever until we meet again.. The word missed is another word that doesn't come close.. I'll forever keep you in my heart and will never forget you being the shoulder I quite often needed.. To those reading this who knew him and/or knew me.. I love with all of my heart and I know if he ever told you he loved you.. he meant it just as much.. I will think of you every day Joseph and do so with a smile on my face and love in my heart.. Reni, Rocky, Angie.. I love you all dearly and will stand by you always.. I love you Joseph.. Always

“ To Josephs family....please know my thoughts and prayers are with you all. It's breaks my heart to write this post cause there's just not enough words to explain how much he meant to me and my family. We loved Joey as if he was our own. He has given us so many bright days within the past several years.....those bright days has turned into beautiful memories that will always be cherished deep in our hearts. He has made us laugh so hard and now we shed tears....it was a privilege getting to know joey and loving him as if he was our own. God may have called him home but he will always live in our hearts. Thank you all for sharing him with us. We learned somethings from Joey....but the greatest thing he could have ever taught us is the meaning of .. " NEVER GIVE UP ". If you guys need anything....please let us know. JOEY.....WE LOVE YOU ALWAYS !
